6 OHIOANS DIE BY DROWNING

Boy, 10, Stricken as Mother Tries Vainly To Save His Life.

By The Associated Press
A mother vainly tried to save her ten-year-old son who collapsed in the Little Miami river and a father drowned in sight of his family in the Mad river. They were among six Ohioans who died yesterday as temperatures hovering around the 90-degree mark sent bathers to lakes, streams and pools to seek relief from the heat.

The ten-year-old boy was Lewis Wayne Stewart. He was bathing in the Little Miami river near Alpha when his mother, Mrs. Lewis E. Stewart, standing on the bank heard his cries for help.

The mother waded into water up to her waist and pulled her son to shore. Xenia firemen were summoned but were unable to revive the boy. Physicians said the child collapsed of a heart condition.

The father who drowned was Walter R. Fuchs, 42, of Dayton. He was bathing in Mad river near Oak in sight of his wife and two children when he went down.

Two Dayton men, Bob Daily and William Corbett, pulled Fuchs from the stream but attempts to revive him failed.

Five-year-old Dorothy Marie Haver was enjoying an outing at Lake St. Mary's when she was missed by her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Haver of Lima Lake Patrolman M. A. Durbin and Supt. John Sunderland found the little girl's body in the harbor near the state office later.

Search On for Boy Missing in Cleveland

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, June 23—Police searched today for seven-year-old Terry Males, who walked out of his home Saturday morning carrying an umbrella and has been missing since that time.

The boy, object of a widespread east side search since late Saturday, was seen leaving his home by a neighbor, Mrs. Gertrude Davies "Terry," who was carrying an umbrella, waved to me and kidded me about putting clothes on the line when it looked as if it were going to rain any minute," Mrs. Davies said. "I wish now I had asked him where he was going."

Mrs. Loretta Males, 38, the boy's mother, said none of her family had seen Terry leave the residence. She thought he might have gone to a neighborhood movie, she said, but when he failed to return home Saturday afternoon a neighborhood canvass was made.

PEAK LIVING COSTS CLIMBING HIGHER

By The United Press
The cost of living which reached an all-time high in May still is climbing, a survey showed today.

Most prices are at an all-time peak, and most industry spokesmen said there is no hope of a price break until September at the earliest.

However, the bureau of labor statistics at Washington predicted that longer-range seasonal pressures would bring a slow, steady climb in most food prices until November.

The bureau also noted that rent generally is rising.

Price increases have been announced or are anticipated in several basic commodities.

As a result of the wage commitments by John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers, the cost of coal is expected to rise 40 cents a ton or more.

Jap City Razed by Quakes, Fire

By The Associated Press
TOKYO, June 23—Three heavy earthquakes followed by fire wrecked the western Japanese city of Fukui late today.

Japanese newspapers pegged the total of dead and injured might reach 3,000, but U. S. occupation authorities said first fears had proved excessive and declined to make an estimate.

The only known casualty figures were 10 dead and 60 injured at Daishoji, coastal village 30 miles northeast of Fukui.

"It is apparently not as bad as we thought it was," said Brig. Gen. Crawford Sams, head of the occupation's health and welfare section. Damage appears to be pretty well localized.

Col. C. C. Carter, adjutant general of the First Corps, told the Associated Press there were no indications of any tidal wave. Japanese had earlier expressed fears there might be such waves, as they often follow coastal earthquakes.

Fukui, a city of about 55,000 population, is 300 miles west of Tokyo and 10 miles from the sea of Japan.

Not by Superstition

It was 85 per cent destroyed by American Superfortresses in July, 1943, but since had been largely rebuilt.

Occupation headquarters had no figures immediately on the number of Americans in the area, but said all apparently were safe. There were no reports on American casualties, and a Japanese broadcast from the area said "all occupation personnel okay," Colonel Carter declared.

The epicenter of the earth shocks appeared to be in Fukui and Otsuka, the latter 100 miles southeast of the scene, felt the shocks but reported no damage and there were no disaster reports from points outside the immediate Fukui vicinity.

Japanese reports said the railway was closed to within 10 or 15 miles of Fukui.

General Sams said another train was available in Tokyo but was not being sent as there appeared to be no immediate necessity for it.

Plenty of Supplies

"Plenty of help and supplies already are on the way," he said.

Japanese national police cancelled plans to declare a state of emergency in the stricken area. They said police, firemen and doctors from four neighboring prefectures were going to the scene.

The first shock hit Fukui at 4:12 p. m. (1:12 a. m. eastern time) and was followed by two others, with the first resulting almost at once.

Original reports said 500 houses collapsed in the first shock, but this later was scaled down by the army to about 300.

Other Army reports said there was no fire and damage was slight at the big manufacturing city of Kanazawa. A long silence from the city of 180,000 persons had produced fears of a heavy toll.

Tidal wave warnings were issued by Japan, remembering the 44,000 who died in the 1923 Tokyo quake were jittery.

The heaviest damage appeared to be in three prefectures, Fukui, Ishikawa and Toyama.

Fall in Tokyo

Buildings in Tokyo—several hundred miles to the northeast—swayed and quakes were felt at Nagoya, Kobe, Osaka and Kyoto. (Honolulu reported a sharp earthquake there at 1:30 a. m. Honolulu time.)

The Osaka meteorological agency said the first of three tremors struck at 7:12 a. m. Other reports placed the number of tremors at four. Communications with the stricken area were disrupted.

Weather reports were received by the U. S. Army headquarters in Kyoto, which is about 75 miles from the hardest hit areas.

In Fukui Aashi said 80 per cent of the town's buildings had collapsed.

One seven-story concrete department store fell in, the newspaper said.

The U. S. Eighth army staff began work immediately after the quakes were reported in an effort to obtain reliable information on which to base relief measures.

SIGNS HUGE FOREIGN AID SPENDING BILL

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON (June 23)—The $4,000,000,000 foreign aid program became law today.

President Truman signed the appropriation bill swinging America full force into the most ambitious world economic program in history.

It pledges to western Europe and far eastern countries to spend within 15 months—within a year if necessary—this vast sum in the cause of recovery and political freedom.

Authors of the bill also made it clear that the intent also is to throw up a barrier against the spread of Communism by strengthening governments outside of the iron curtain.

In a statement the President said the appropriation represents "the combined judgment and will of the executive and the Congress."

"It was evolved in the spirit of cooperation and not of partisan conflict," Mr. Truman continued. "It demonstrates the united determination of our people to make good our pledge of cooperation to those who, like ourselves are striving to achieve enduring peace and prosperity among all nations."

The President said that the action "furnishes concrete evidence and assurance to the free people of the world that we stand ready to work side by side with them to preserve free institutions in stability and peace."

By The Associated Press

L. S. Martin, her attorney, made the plea and Prosecutor Carson Hey said that a trial date be set. The court said it will act on the motion tomorrow.

Barbara Ann died last May 15. Mrs. Clayton was indicted after a pathologist reported finding poison in the child's body and also in that of Willie Watts, the husband, who died several years ago.

CITY HAS BLACKOUT

CARGO PLANES TO CARRY FOOD PAST RUSSIANS

Action Taken to Help Break Blockade; Truman Confers on Crisis.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 23—A White House conference on the Russian blockade of around transport to western Berlin was indicated today.

There was no public comment on the situation, which had prompted the United States to rush a fleet of heavy cargo planes to Germany.

But Presidential Secretary Charles G. Egan, in response to questions at a news conference, called attention to the fact that President Truman had a close appointment with Undersecretary of State Lovett.

Egan said he assumed the new Berlin crisis would come up for discussion then.

As food supplies dwindled for 2,000,000 Berliners, diplomats predicted the Western Powers shortly would make a direct dash on the Kremlin to lift the traffic snarl from their sectors.

Air force headquarters announced here last night that about 30 of the big four-engine C-54 flying shuttles had been ordered to Germany to help ferry food and other urgently needed supplies in to the American sector of Berlin.

The action gave more indication of the determination of the United States, along with Britain and France, to stand fast and resist Soviet efforts to block rail, highway and canal transport into the city.

Officials here interpreted the Russian action as designed primarily to force the three Western Powers out of Berlin and then convert it into the Communist-controlled capital of an eastern German state.

A British foreign office spokesman said yesterday in London that the Western Nations were considering a direct "approach" to Moscow, evidently in an effort to obtain an order from Premier Stalin which would reverse the Soviet policies in Berlin and ease the highly dangerous situation developing there.

State department officials had no comment on the British statement.

U.S. Transport Air Fleet in Service

By The Associated Press
BERLIN, June 23—United States transport planes were arriving at Tempelhof airport at eight-minute intervals today with food and other supplies for the Soviet-blockaded city.

A total of 120 planes was expected to fly the corridor over the Russian zone during the day to supply the U. S. Air way bill in Berlin and fill the most urgent needs of the 2,000,000 or so Germans in Berlin's three western sectors.

Thirty-five planes had arrived at Tempelhof from Frankfurt by 10:30 a. m. and 72 more were in the air between two cities.

Special crews were on duty at the airport to unload the planes as they could return as quickly as possible.

The U. S. Air Force hoped to land 100 or more planes in daily as long as necessary. But even the 120 planes scheduled today could bring only 300 tons of supplies. For the people of the western sectors the Western Allies formerly brought in 3,000 tons of food daily by rail.

In Berlin tension relaxed somewhat as the currency exchange of the last week was completed and stores reopened for business. But over the city hung a threat of hunger. Even the Americans and British were under rationing and rationing rules.

German in the American, British and French sectors have been getting no food by rail and highway since the blockade went into full force the middle of last week. They have been getting a few small shipments by plane and barge.

British transport shuttles said four four-engine bombers here yesterday and 20 more were on the way. They could not explain why Russian inspectors let the planes through.

Austrian buses in force. American food and medicine in Army and civilian road trucks, retained food parcels, heated parties and receptions, football games and held each other over to five gallons of gasoline a week.

Three for British Airways to power economy in fuel and power. Parties were continuing and afternoon movies stopped.

BOWLING GREEN, O June 26.—James A. Wheeler asked $50,000 today for a joke that backfired.

In a suit in Wood county common pleas court, Wheeler declared that on Dec. 6, 1947, he crossed the street to the yard of his neighbor Harrison J. Berry and was "perpetrating a joke" by turning out the lights on Berry's outside Christmas tree.

Berry he said mistook him for a trespasser and fired a shotgun at him. Ten operations were necessary to get the 10-odd pellets out of his body and he still is unable to work and walks awkwardly he added.

Asking $50,000 damages he declared that Harrison had fired negligently recklessly, wantonly and without warning or notice.

RETURN BODIES OF 3,734 VETS

Marion and Kenton Men on Ship Docking at New York Saturday.

The bodies of a Marion man and a Kenton man are among those of 3,734 Americans who left their lives during World War II and are being returned to the United States from Europe for final interment. The vessel bearing the bodies, the U. S. Army Transport Greenville Victory, docked Saturday in New York. Of those on the ship, 244 are for next of kin residing in Ohio.

Being returned to this area are Sgt. William J. Maniaci, Army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Maniaci of 718 Silver street, and Pvt. Henderson Hensley, Army, next of kin, Elsie Hensley of Kenton.

Buried in France

All bodies aboard the ship were originally interred in temporary military cemeteries in France.

Sgt. Maniaci, 33 years of age at the time of his death, was killed in France July 28, 1944, while serving with an infantry unit in that country. He was wounded in the battle for Cherbourg. He had been stationed overseas since November, 1943. His last station in the United States was at Camp Gordon Johnston, Va. Before entering the armed forces July 30, 1942, Sgt. Maniaci was employed at the Home Super Market on Silver street. He was a graduate of St. Mary's Parochial high school. Sgt. Maniaci was born in Ullia.

List of Survivors

Surviving besides his parents are six sisters, Mrs. Natalie Maniaci of 606 South Prospect street, Mrs. Guido Dandera of Newark, Mrs. Sam Tarantona of Bellare, Mrs. Mike Truiano of 344 Milburn avenue, Mrs. Carmen Casuso of 740 Davis street, and Miss Freda Maniaci, at home, and two brothers, Anthony Maniaci of 693 Silver street, and Brother Emilian, C.S.C., of the Congregation of Holy Cross of Notre Dame, Ind.

The body will be brought to the M. H. Gunders and Sons funeral home here. Funeral services will be held at the St. Mary Catholic church and burial will be in St. Mary cemetery.

PEAK LIVING COSTS CLIMBING HIGHER

By The Associated Press
The cost of living, which reached an all-time high in May, still is climbing, a survey showed today.

Meat prices are at an all-time peak, and meat industry spokesmen said there is no hope of a price break until September at the earliest.

However, the bureau of labor statistics at Washington predicted that longer-range seasonal pressures would bring a slow, steady climb in most food prices until November.

The bureau also noted that rent generally is rising.

Prior increases have been announced or are anticipated momentarily on several basic commodities.

As a result of the wage concessions won by John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers, the cost of coal is expected to rise 65 cents a ton or more.

DEMOCRATS ON COAST HEDGE

California Delegation Prefers Truman But Make No Definite Pledge.

By The Associated Press
California Democrats hung a "wait and see" tag today on their 62 national convention votes.

Although all the state's delegates signed statements yesterday that they preferred President Truman as the party's nominee, a spokesman said this was not to be taken as a pledge.

"We're leaving California as a Truman delegation and will say what happens at Philadelphia, according to conditions at that time," John F. Shelley, delegation chairman said. He said his group had decided to caucus on any question that comes up at the national convention opening July 12 in Philadelphia.

Warren Popular
This development, coming on the heels of the Republican's selection of Gov. Earl Warren of California as running mate to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, freshened interest in the party nomination.

Warren demonstrated his popularity with California voters two years ago when both the Republicans and Democrats picked him as their candidate for a second term as governor.

Meanwhile the Democrats huddled into the final week of delegates picking. The District of Columbia will select a six-vote delegation at a primary today. The national vote of 1934 will be completed Friday when Virginia Democrats choose a 28-vote delegation expected to be anti-Truman.

But to date Mr. Truman counts 670 pledged and claimed delegates, with 618 being required for nomination.

While the GOP candidates took Chicago away over the weekend, Republican senators carried on the campaign fight.

Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) returned to Washington "completely happy about the Philadelphia results." He praised Dewey and Warren and said the party's platform is "an unequivocal commitment in international cooperation for peace and security."

U.S. Transport Air Fleet in Service

By The Associated Press
BERLIN, June 28.—United States transport planes were arriving at Tempelhof airport at eight-minute intervals today when food and other supplies for this Soviet-blockaded city.

A total of 150 planes was expected to fly the corridor over the Russian zone during the day to apply the U. S. "hot line" to Berlin and fill the most urgent needs of the 2,000,000 or so Germans in Berlin's three war-torn sectors.

Thirty-five planes had arrived at Tempelhof from Frankfurt by 10:30 a. m. and 72 more were in the air between two cities.

Special crews were on duty at the airport to unload the planes as they could return as quickly as possible.

The U. S. Air Force hoped to send 100 or more planes in daily as long as necessary. But even the 70 planes scheduled today could bring only 300 tons of supplies for the people of the western sector. The Western Allies formerly brought 2,500 tons of food daily by rail.

In Berlin tension related somewhat to the currency exchange of the last week was eased by the arrival of the planes. American and British were under quarantine and rationing rules. German and French sectors have been getting no food by railroad and highway since the blockade went into full force the middle of last week. They have been getting a few small shipments by plane and barge.

British transport aircrafts said from their bases reached here yesterday and 20 more were on the way. They could not explain why Russian inspectors let the barges through.

Endors Innocent Plan To Poisoning Charge

By The Associated Press
CINCINNATI, June 28.—Mrs. Mary Clay Watts, 43, stood silently before Judge Nelson Schwab in criminal court today as her attorney entered a plea of innocent for her to a charge of murder in the first degree in the prison death of her 11-year-old daughter, Barbara Ann.

L. S. Martin, her attorney, made the plea and Prosecutor Carson May asked that a trial date be set. The court said he will act on the motion tomorrow.

Barbara Ann died last May 15. Mrs. Watts was indicted after a pathologist reported finding poison in the child's body and also in that of Willie Watts, the husband, who died several years ago.

CITY HAS BLACKOUT

CLEVELAND, June 28.—Several hundred homes and business establishments from East 9th to East 20th streets had a power blackout last night when a rainstorm flooded some streets with 10 inches of water and cut off current from the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. for one-half hour.

CARGO PLANES TO CARRY FOOD PAST RUSSIANS

Action Taken to Help Break Blockade; Truman Confers on Crisis.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 28.—A White House conference on the Russian blockade of ground transport to western Berlin was indicated today.

There was no public comment on the situation, which has prompted the United States to rush a fleet of huge cargo planes to Germany.

But Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross, in response to questions at a news conference, called attention to the fact that President Truman has a loan appointment with Undersecretary of State Lovett.

Ross said he assumed the new Berlin crisis would come up for discussion then.

As food supplies dwindled for 2,000,000 Berliners, diplomats predicted the Western Powers shortly would make a direct demand on the Kremlin to lift the traffic snarl from their sectors.

Air force headquarters announced here last night that about 20 of the big four-engine C-54 flying shuttles had been ordered to Germany to help ferry food and other urgently needed supplies in to the American sector of Berlin.

The action gave one more indication of the determination of the United States, along with Britain and France, to stand fast and resist Soviet efforts to block rail, highway and canal transport into the city.

Officials here interpret the Russian action as designed primarily to force the three Western Powers out of Berlin and then convert it into the Communist-controlled capital of an eastern German state.

A British foreign office spokesman said yesterday in London that the Western Nations were considering a direct "approach" to Moscow, evidently in an effort to obtain an answer from Premier Stalin which would reverse the Soviet policies in Berlin and ease the highly dangerous situation developing there.

State department officials had no comment on the British statement.

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
Disease with Unknown Cause

One of the most challenging diseases known to a man, ulcerative colitis, has so far defied all attempts to find either its cause or its cure. That is not to say that nobody with this disorder gets well or that treatment accomplishes nothing. Far from it. But as is always the case where there is a disease of which the exact cause is unknown, the treatment is unsatisfactory, no completely satisfactory form of treatment has yet been worked out.

Colitis simply means inflammation of the colon or large intestine. In ulcerative colitis, sores, which can be plainly seen during an examination with the proctoscope, form along the walls of the bowel. The proctoscope is a tube with an electric light bulb on the end of it.

From time to time a good many different opinions have been advanced as to why certain people should be afflicted in this way. Some experts believe infection may be at the root of the trouble, but no germ that is definitely responsible has been found. Others think that perhaps the condition may be due to allergy or over-sensitivity to some food, but this theory, too, remains unproved. Nervous disorders and deficiencies in the diet are thought to play a part in bringing the condition about, but here, also, the evidence is too scanty for a verdict of guilty.

The patient with ulcerative colitis has many bowel movements a day. The movements contain blood and mucus. Many patients find that the attacks occur following excessive physical or emotional strain. Patients suffer from dizziness and mental depression and often develop anemia or leucopenia of the coloring of the red cells in the blood.

So far as treatment goes, the giving of injections of whole blood into the veins is most helpful. Vitamins may assist in maintaining the nutrition but, since these may be poorly absorbed from the intestine, it may be necessary to administer them by injection into a vein or under the skin.

The diet is important and should be free of irritating or highly-seasoned food, as well as bulk and roughage. It is necessary to make sure that enough protein is supplied from such foods as meat, milk, and eggs. Often such patients suffer from poor appetite and it is difficult to get them to take the necessary amounts of food.

If such treatment does not bring about improvement, or the patient continues to get worse, operation may be necessary. It would appear that surgery is required in about four out of ten cases.

The operation usually employed is one known as ileostomy. This consists of making an opening from the small intestine through the abdominal wall so that the large bowel may be washed or irrigated from time to time and given an opportunity to rest or heal.

In all instances, it is important to build up the patient's morale, since this seems to have a great effect in producing a cure.

Questions and Answers
N. C. I have had athlete's foot for several years. Is there anything that will get rid of the condition?

Answer: Athlete's foot is a chronic condition requiring expert care and strong drugs which, if used in the wrong way, might irritate the skin and make the disorder worse. For this reason, it is important that any preparation employed for this disease be used only under the direction of a physician.

You should consult your physician concerning proper treatment in your case.

Get Terms of Peace, Bernadette Proposals

In the Associated Press RELEASE, June 26—Jews and Arabs received from Count Folke Bernadotte today his proposals for peace in Palestine. Bernadotte is a United Nations mediator who brought about the current four week armistice.

The suggestions, which the mediator called a basis for further discussion, were not published.

(Premier Jami) Mandelstam of Syria said in Damascus the proposals will "in no way modify our attitude of rejecting partition and a Jewish state in Palestine." Jews are just as insistent that the new state of Israel must continue to exist.

The milking of cows did not become a regular practice in England until 1602.

RECALLS DOG'S CARE, NOW $20,000 RICHER

By The Associated Press NEW YORK, June 28—Because she was conscientious about getting home to feed her dog, a 42-year-old grandmother was there to receive a radio jackpot telephone call which made her $20,000 richer.

Mrs. Mary Farber won that much in prizes last night for correctly naming the title of the mystery melody on the ABC network's "Stop the Music" program.

The title was "Get Out of the Wilderness," an 1860 song later corrupted into several other melodies.

Among the prizes are a $1,000 U.S. savings bond, a 30-day cruise to South America, a $1,000 fur coat, an automobile and a $1,000 diamond ring.

Mrs. Farber and her husband, a taxicab driver, plan to sell some of the prizes to build a home and gasoline station in West Palm Beach, Fla. Something they have wanted for a long time. People started telephoning trying to rent their three-room apartment even before they announced plans to move.

Mrs. Farber said the only reason she was home when the telephone call from the radio program's Bert Parks came was that it was feeding time for her pet Boston terrier, Puggy. She had the radio turned on.

She had spent yesterday visiting relatives in Englewood, N. J. with her husband Milton, 44, and cut the visit short to meet the dog's feeding time.

Mrs. Farber said she learned the title of the song from her brother Mack Lazarus of 23 Quintard Terrace Stamford Conn., who got it from a musician friend. Her brother was with her when the call came.

They Can Make It Expensive

THE Kremlin-guided Communists of Europe may not be able to keep the United States from helping the countries they are trying to control. But they can make the cost of European aid frightfully high.

They can do this by strikes like the one called in the Italian food industry by the General Confederation of Labor still under Communist control. Wherever they can interfere with efficient distribution of necessities, they can add to the expense of carrying out the Marshall plan.

The technique of Communist sabotage is revealed in a report by the American mission for aid to Greece. The report shows that 75 cents out of every dollar the United States has contributed to Greece so far has been spent to overcome war and hunger. Direct military expenses took 51 per cent of the $238,000,000 already received by Greece. Food took another 24 per cent. Even the money spent for reconstruction was, in some cases, of primary value to Greece's military operations against its Communist-guided revolutionaries. The same kind of sabotage can be carried out in all the countries entitled to receive help under the Marshall plan.

It can even be carried out in the United States, to the extent that Communists are able to interfere with the efficiency of the national program for European aid. They go away with it before the United States and Russia became allies in World War II, boldly admitting their intention to keep this country from helping Europe. They aren't likely to admit it in 1946, but nothing has happened in the meantime to improve their intentions.

That "Slave Labor" Law

THE national labor relations board has ordered an employer to move his plant back to Akron from Kenon, or pay the expenses of his employees traveling between Akron and Kenon. It held that his move to Kenon was in effect a lockout because he moved to avoid bargaining with his employees.

This ruling was made under the Taft-Hartley act, the much-maligned piece of legislation that was supposed to wipe out labor's gains and send every workman to his job in leg-irons.

The Scientific Approach

DECISION of the federal government to establish a hoof and mouth disease research laboratory on Prudence Island in Narragansett bay is evidence that the agriculture department has abandoned its costly program to eradicate the disease in Mexico by quarantine and slaughter. Two months ago the Farm Journal reported that the battle to bring the Mexican infestation under control had been lost.

Granted the probability of discovering a serum that will impart permanent immunity, the scientific approach will be less costly in the long run. Periodic outbreaks of the disease have been checked, but only at great expense and with no assurance as to the future. Development of a serum would be well worth the cost, for it would end a threat to America's meat supply.

The High Cost of Flying

IN WARTIME, thousands of bright young men received their aviator's wings. The prediction was that after the war the nation's airways would swarm with private planes. It was just another wartime prediction that fell flat.

The nation has more than 500,000 citizens who know how to fly planes. But private flying is a limited activity. Like the city boy who owns a pony, the flier who owns a personal plane is a rare bird.

Wartime fliers came home to brides, babies, college studies and a rising cost of living. Plans for an auto in the garage and a plane in a nearby hangar were modified or abandoned. The few who had the wherewithal to acquire a private plane soon found that storage and upkeep clipped their wings. A survey shows that high costs even restrict the flying of 88.4 per cent of private plane owners, although their average annual income is $6,065. Sixty-five per cent of private pilots fly less than 25 hours a month.

The Sound Truck Age

REPERCUSSIONS weren't long in coming after the supreme court decision invalidating ordinances regulating loudspeakers. In New York a left-wing organization descended upon Republican and Democratic headquarters with sound trucks blaring. Police made arrests on the grounds that such tactics endangered public welfare. Another test of the decision seems to be taking shape.

In its solicitude for free speech, the court may have unleashed a monster spewing decibels across the countryside. Speaking for the minority, Justice Frankfurter argued that free speech didn't include the right to make loud and offensive noise.

Next time around, the court should be convinced on the question of whether free speech includes the right to drown out less powerful voices, which also have a right to free speech. If it does, we are in for a noisy time.

Dewey Family Will Bring Change to White House.

IT WILL be a change when and if Thomas E. Dewey is elected president of the United States. In the first place, in the White House will be a quiet family, all the members of which, including father, project themselves in the public eye with difficulty. Mrs. Dewey is in no manner competing with her husband for public acclaim. As a wife she goes along, but her major interest is family life, the normal family life of the average American home in the middle west.

These Deweys are not New Yorkers, although Tom made his career there. He is from Owego, N. Y., she from S. L. Piquette, Ohio. Those are small towns and if they produce small town personalities, Tom Dewey is just that and so is his lady. If they prefer to stay home at night, maybe it is because New York night life loses its thrill on acquaintance except for those who would rather be harried than not to be seen. Anyhow, Tom Dewey succeeded in making a career in the big city without giving up the simple ways of small town life. And up through success after success to the governorship of the Empire State, he and Frances continued their quiet and modest life.

In their personal friendships the Deweys are much the same. Herbert Brownell, who has managed all of Dewey's political campaigns, is just a country boy from Indiana who made good in the big city. Herb once ran for state senator and Tom Dewey was his campaign manager. Then it came to be the other way about.

His two principal intellectual advisors, John Foster Dulles and Elliot Bell, are scholarly men. Dulles's grandfather, John Foster, was secretary of state. I believe out of Indiana, his uncle, Robert Lansing, was Woodrow Wilson's secretary of state, and Foster, as he is called, is one of the principal Protestant laymen in America.

One in New York

Plan Pays Off

And of the camaraderie, the most hard-working is that tall, Brooklyn lawyer who always is where Dewey is a sort of guardian angel. Paul Lockwood, who even more than Tom Dewey was rewarded by Dewey's nomination for Paul sacrificed an important career of his own to serve Dewey as his secretary. His confidence paid off Thursday night in the satisfaction of knowing that it was not in vain.

I can go on describing the Dewey circle, but these examples suffice. It is a good, clean American crowd not devoted men who serve not only Dewey but their country. If they seem very quiet and simple after the gay night life Roosevelt's crumpled will, I am sure, be better for the change.

For Dewey will give it a sober administration with few tricks and fewer still attempts to cover error by another error. It will, as he said, be done by teamwork, for never assuming the role of a know-it-all, he always delegates authority while he assumes full responsibility. He proved an excellent administrator in New York state, he will do the same for America.

Typewriter Bottleneck
Lack of Machines Slows Japan's Recovery.

"BLACK market typists" are getting rich in the shortage of English-language typewriters. The lack of typewriters actually is a big bottleneck in Japan's foreign trade picture.

The demand for typists and American typewriters to handle the unprecedented amount of English-language business transactions is far greater than the supply.

Japan never has had facilities for making western-style typewriters and there never has been such a demand for English-language paper work as there is today.

Thousands of reports must be made by Japanese officials to Allied headquarters. Thousands of pages of English-language typing are required daily in Japan's struggling postwar export business. United States officials are trying to help that important business along because it brings in foreign credits that Japan needs and tends to lessen the burden on the American taxpayer who currently is footing the bill here.

Japanese men and women who know how to type—and who have typewriters—can just about write their own tickets. For more straight copying of documents, a typist can get 300 yen per page. Three hundred yen is about $1.25 at the current open market yen exchange rate.

Typists don't have to look for work. They can sit at home and type as long as they can lift their hands. Big export firms, Japanese Government offices and private individuals stand in line to beg these "black market typists" to take their work.

They are known as "black market typists" because their income runs higher than the government-approved scale for office workers.

Because of the shortage of typewriters, the backlog of typing stacks up and foreign trade lags. Japanese officials are anxious to import a large number of American typewriters. Their efforts have been balked, the Japanese say, because of the Allied belief that Japan should not import finished products at this time but should use her foreign credits for raw materials.

The Japanese, however, feel that a few thousand typewriters would speed up their economic recovery. Undoubtedly they will point that out to Allied headquarters when they can time a typist and a typewriter to handle the correspondence.

A Rare Bargain

WAS CALIFORNIA worth $15,000,000? That was what the United States paid Mexico for California just 100 years ago. Under the peace treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo which went into effect May 30, 1848, this country took over California and also what is now Nevada, Utah and parts of Arizona, New Mexico, Wyoming and Colorado.

In addition to paying $15,000,000—Mexico has asked for $30,000,000—the United States assumed the war claims of its citizens against Mexico. Gold had been discovered in California four months before the treaty was signed, but word had reached neither Mexico City nor Washington at the time.

In reality, California and the other territory were the spoils of war. President Polk knew Great Britain had designs on California and had been negotiating with Mexico for cession of the territory. But Polk was sensitive to the charges that the war had been waged for conquest and insisted in his message to Congress that $15,000,000 was a fair price.

In 1846, Congress was sharply divided on the slavery question. As a result, California wasn't admitted as a state in 1850. It was the only state except Texas and possibly Vermont to be admitted without first having been a territory or part of a territory.

The Guadalupe Hidalgo treaty was signed under unusual circumstances. President Polk had a disagreement with the envoy, Nicholas Trist, chief clerk of the State Department, and sent word to Mexico that Trist might have the power to make a treaty. Before the word got to Mexico, however, Trist had the treaty signed and was on his way to Washington.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, June 26, 1936. Five Marion county Civil war veterans, whose ages totaled 46 years, left on a 370-mile trip to Gettysburg, Pa. to join other veterans in celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg. They were Francis S. Layton, 93, commander of Cooper Post No. 117, and a past commander of the state G. A. R., Henry Hiebler, 95, Joseph Miller, 94, William Brady, 93, and Jesse D. Hoiler, 92.

The wedding of Miss Emelyn Von Kamel and Francis Willacker was solemnized with a nuptial high mass in St. Mary Catholic church.

Miss Ruth Kramer, president of the Altrusa club announced committees for the ensuing year when the club closed the season with a picnic at the home of Miss Christine Beck on South Vine street.

John Roberts of East Church and Charles Baker Jr. of Union avenue were in Berea, Ky. attending the National H-Y congress.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, June 28, 1926. The Democratic national convention at Houston, Tex., approved a platform plank in which the party pledged rigid enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment as well as other provisions of the Constitution.

Gov. Al Smith of New York was nominated for the presidency at the Houston convention shortly before midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris J. Green and daughter of Lansing, Mich., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Coleman of Toledo.

Miss Lucile Wendell of Columbus was visiting Miss Louise Neal of East Church street.

Mrs. Henry Findling was elected president of the Farm Women's club at the annual picnic held at Garfield park.

Mrs. Cecil Gabler was hostess to the M. A. T. club at her home on South State street.

Home Readin' Matter.

By Frank Tripp

IF you were asked to say how much home readin' matter never gets read, what would you guess? To get a column out of it I'm going to say 80 per cent. I pick 80 per cent just offhand, careless like, but I can dig up some evidence. My library uniting or pretentious, still when a run-of-mine visitor views it he could be fooled that I'm a rather extensive reader. The truth is that I haven't read two thirds of the books I own.

A smart researcher can figure one's reading habits by what is on his shelves and how the books are arranged. At my house he'd find two sets of encyclopedias, one aponodorus, unabridged set which confuses me more than it informs. This is inconveniently shelved. A more condensed set, that gets down to cases, is right handy by.

Then within arm's reach of my jacket chair he'd find evidence that I'm nostalgic, sentimental—and try to write. He'd find a well-worn set of Mark Sullivan's "Our Times," Gilbert and Sullivan's operas, Ed Mark's "They All Sang," a Who's Who, a Who Was Who and three over-worked old faithfuls, Roger's Thesaurus, the current World Almanac and today's newspaper.

Back when doctors came for a dollar a call I asked a successful old practitioner what drugs he could least do without. "Harris's bells," he said, "with out 80 per cent of 'em" he said, "I could probably do a better job if I just stuck to morphine and castor oil."

By like bunch and a little inaccuracy I arrived at my 80 per cent. That many of my books that cost a lot of dough just make good scenery, impress callers and haven't been touched by anybody but the maid since I moved others to the attic to make room for them.

Near as I can learn from book owners who are honest about it, that's about the average reading that home book shelves get. But, half hidden in a corner like as not you'll find a stack of 10 to 20 dog-eared paper-covered thrillers that have been read all

What Every Parent Knows

The youthful cry heard near and far is: "Daddy, can I use the car?"

The new Governor General of India is Chakravarti Rajagopalachari. News item.

Just call me "C R."

Elmer Twitshell complains that a telecast of a convention of politicians brings up everything but the halitosis.

Uncle Sam has declared one type of new money for Western Germany. The Germans have decided another for the East. A German today more than a recording of Hitler's line. "I promise you Germany will never be put in the position she was in after the First World War."

Not Convertible

By TRUMAN TWILL

Perhaps it's a privilege to be able to remember the first convertible. But on the other hand, everything was convertible in the early days of the automobile. There has been a cycle from what we had then to what we have now—and a passenger should live so long.

In those very early days everybody was trying to do something about convertibles in a hurry. Inventors could hardly wait to invent a contraption called the one-man top; it could be handled by a man, a woman and a strong bystander. And once it was put up, it was kept up.

They moved on to a monstrosity known as the all-weather top, a thing that had removable panels which were taken out in the summer for better ventilation. The trouble was, they didn't know how to crank windows up and down. But they were on their way.

Finally, they clicked with a "closed car," as it was enthusiastically called. They learned how to make the doors open and shut how to make the windows movable. They eliminated the nerve-shattering rattling and rumbling that threatened to drive the passengers squirrely.

At the climax of their endeavors, they even learned how to make the top an integral part of the automobile, instead of being a makeshift canopy to shield riders from the sun, the rain and the cold. They learned how to heat and ventilate the automobile—and that was a great stroke of genius.

Then, with the perversity characteristic of human beings, there was an insane urge to turn back the clock and have convertibles again—with results visible on every highway. Once more eyes are full of flying debris. Foreheads are burned to a crisp. Sinuses thump with the beating they take under forced draft and human hair resembles the pelt on a zoo lion in shedding season.

Passengers arrive at their destination coated with traffic film and an overlay of dust. Conversation is an ordeal of trying to overbear wind-blown wisps of sentences. The sun and the rains get in their dirty work and weather-beaten countenances once more are a feature of the American scene.

They've made automobiles convertible, but not the passengers. They are still the same people who couldn't wait for the convertible era of a generation ago to come to a close so they could use the automobile for some higher purpose than an endurance contest.

This writer hadn't ridden in a convertible since the early 20's, until recently. What was rugged then is vastly more rugged now, if only because automobiles go faster than they did then. But there are other contributing factors. Two men were in a machine, such as a sedan, especially, baldness. The top is the glow of health on your skull, kiddies. That is the flash of pain. The passenger was not convertible. He couldn't take it when he got out from under cover.

Man's Problem

THE towering enemy of man is not his science but his moral inadequacy. Around the world today, laboratories supported by almost unlimited resources are feverishly pushing their research in the development of physical and bacteriological weapons which overnight could turn this planet into a gigantic slaughterhouse.

"On what moral basis will the decision be made to use these weapons?" What ethical restraints have been developed to curb the hysteria, fright and passion of men against such a blind paroxysm of destruction?

"For if this final Nemesis overtakes the pretensions of modern man, it will not be his science that has betrayed him, but his moral values. It will not be his telephones and all that it symbolizes that has led him to the doorstep of doom, it will be the impotence and humanness of his ethical code."—Dr. Raymond R. Foerster, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, in dedicating the 300-inch telescope at Mt. Palomar, Calif.

The Once Over
By H. I. Phillips

Reaction To a Telecast Convention

I had more faith in the state of the nation when more was left to the imagination. When politicians spouted and hurried—And seeing them could be averred.

The video is a thing, I feel, which makes a convention a tough ordeal. A great many spectators may be seen. But you'd never suspect it from these faces.

I trust an assortment of dual like mad, for doing so is the current fad. I tune in for detail and tune in for fight. And tune in for focus with main and night. And what do I get in ample doses? Some curious shots of ears and noses. Some candid views of hairless freakish. Amid a mass of voices squealish. A close-up of necks both short and long. Some chin receding and few too strong. And this is what gives me the jitters badly. These are the fellows who'll save me gladly.

I was happier for the old conventions which never came through in so many dimensions. Things somehow seemed to have greater firmness.

Before I became a real eye witness, I knew a convention was on and why. But I didn't look it in the eye. I followed the domes of delegates slightly. But now their carting comes through too brightly.

And somehow the show doesn't seem to gladden Half as much as when I could simply listen.

I never realized speaking frankly. So many folks could stare so blankly. I never thought in a hall so acemic. So many men were unphotogenic. I had no idea so many women Were not the type you see in swimmin'.

This routine business of President-making Now has me fearful and has me shaking. So many delegates eager and dutiful. Are so many men's faces being beautiful. So many leaders of mighty forces Have faces that can frighten horses!

ELEANOR ROBSON, once one of America's greatest ladies of the stage was awarded an honorary degree at Yale last week. The citation recalled her stardom in plays like "Arsenic" and "She Stoops To Conquer," told of her marriage to the late August Belmont and, praising her services to the World Council of Churches, said: "Robson and her husband, Mr. Belmont, have endeavored herself to the heart of America."

Bev Kelley, (noted circus press agent whose home is in Delaware, O.) just back from his class reunion, is thinking of filling a long-needed want at commencement exercises. It is a service to supply the name of the classmate you can't remember and the girl you promised never to forget.

Suggestion for a theme song for any convention as expressing its attitude toward another "I can do anything you do."

It strikes us that no boxscore of a convention is complete without a list of those left on bases.

Perhaps it's a privilege to be able to remember the first convertible. But on the other hand, everything was convertible in the early days of the automobile. There has been a cycle from what we had then to what we have now—and a passenger should live so long.

In those very early days everybody was trying to do something about convertibles in a hurry. Inventors could hardly wait to invent a contraption called the one-man top; it could be handled by a man, a woman and a strong bystander. And once it was put up, it was kept up.

They moved on to a monstrosity known as the all-weather top, a thing that had removable panels which were taken out in the summer for better ventilation. The trouble was, they didn't know how to crank windows up and down. But they were on their way.

Finally, they clicked with a "closed car," as it was enthusiastically called. They learned how to make the doors open and shut how to make the windows movable. They eliminated the nerve-shattering rattling and rumbling that threatened to drive the passengers squirrely.

At the climax of their endeavors, they even learned how to make the top an integral part of the automobile, instead of being a makeshift canopy to shield riders from the sun, the rain and the cold. They learned how to heat and ventilate the automobile—and that was a great stroke of genius.

Then, with the perversity characteristic of human beings, there was an insane urge to turn back the clock and have convertibles again—with results visible on every highway. Once more eyes are full of flying debris. Foreheads are burned to a crisp. Sinuses thump with the beating they take under forced draft and human hair resembles the pelt on a zoo lion in shedding season.

Passengers arrive at their destination coated with traffic film and an overlay of dust. Conversation is an ordeal of trying to overbear wind-blown wisps of sentences. The sun and the rains get in their dirty work and weather-beaten countenances once more are a feature of the American scene.

They've made automobiles convertible, but not the passengers. They are still the same people who couldn't wait for the convertible era of a generation ago to come to a close so they could use the automobile for some higher purpose than an endurance contest.

This writer hadn't ridden in a convertible since the early 20's, until recently. What was rugged then is vastly more rugged now, if only because automobiles go faster than they did then. But there are other contributing factors. Two men were in a machine, such as a sedan, especially, baldness. The top is the glow of health on your skull, kiddies. That is the flash of pain. The passenger was not convertible. He couldn't take it when he got out from under cover.

TRAVEL BOOKS ON LIBRARY SHELVES

Summer Reading Provided in Special Collection.

Now that the luxury of travel is again a reality the Marion City library is providing interesting information on where to go, how to get there and what to see. Whether it be a cruise motor, bus or train, there is valuable information to be found in the series of summer books, and if one is to be only an "arm chair" traveler it is an entertainment at its best.

The Look at America series presents an entirely new kind of guide book. The master volume of the series is one of the best collections of photographs of the United States. The nine regional guides, which are made up of photographs of the same high quality give a more complete picture of smaller sections of the country. In addition to the pictures and an informative text, they each contain an introductory essay by a well-known author who is a native of the region, and maps and a complete seasonal account of local sports and major entertainments. The guide books serve three purposes, by providing a preview of what is to be seen, the photographs give a feeling for the country, and they supply a background that helps understand the regions visited. For those who would see the United States there is "Westward

13TH TALLY HO REUNION HELD

Old-Time Marion Young Men's Social Group Meets at Eaglewood Club.

The thirteenth annual reunion of the Tally Ho club, a young men's social organization active in Marion during the early 1900's, was held Saturday afternoon and night at Eaglewood club.

The Tally Ho club occupied the second floor of the old Grand Opera House building on South State street, which was later destroyed by fire and then reconstructed into what is now the Elks building and Ohio theater.

The program Saturday included a social session during the afternoon and evening, a 6:30 o'clock dinner and a business meeting during which officers were elected. Ray Robinson of Detroit, Mich., was elected president for the ensuing year and John P. Probst of Marion was re-elected secretary-treasurer for his sixth consecutive year.

TABULATE RESULTS OF RADIO FIELD DAY

Results have been tabulated covering the annual field day operation held June 12 and 13 by the Central Ohio Radio club. The station, set up near Delaware, contacted 160 other portable amateur stations located in 30 states from Maine to California. Power used for the event was 30 watts to the final transmitter tube. Power radiated was too small to light an ordinary 25 watt light bulb as used in the home.

The station was operated continuously 24 hours from a gasoline engine driven generator owned by the club. Another standby generator was on hand in event of power failure.

Two Marion operators took an active part in the contest operation. They are Jack Hoagland, W8BAS, and Bernie Harris, W8THW. A large number of visitors from Marion were among the more than 100 attending.

Realistic disaster conditions were encountered Saturday afternoon when a sudden electrical and wind storm occurred about one hour after the contest began. Large trees were blown over in fields adjacent to the operating position, the station operators loosened ropes and held the tent during the brief gale.

Communication was difficult for several hours following the storm due to wet antennae and static discharges.

The test, designed to try equipment and operators under conditions similar to those that would exist in a real emergency, was considered successful by participants and by observers. Garland Shorter, W8NQP, Prospect, was field day manager. Bernie Harris, W8THW, Marion, was chief operator.

List of operators and other personnel who assisted in the field day program:

- Ashley W. W. Murray, Columbus, Bob Dilline, Gene Ferguson, John Schleuter, Delaware, Elmer Miller, Foster Sheets, Dana Wexler, Hosea Decker, D. M. Skatze, F. M. Warrick, George Crider, Russell Crider, C. H. Skatze, C. W. Fraley, Archie Arnold, LaRue G. E. Dodds, Marion, Jack Hoagland, Bernie Harris, Marysville, Guy Diekey, Joe Drum, Dr. H. E. Stricker, Prospect, Garland Shorter, Murray Gant.

Memorial Tribute Spoken

Among several talks following the dinner meeting was one given by Jay Vaughan of Marion as a memorial tribute to B. Fred Snider of Columbus, a former president of the reunion group who died recently. Mr. Snider, a Columbus lumber company executive, was the son of the late Rev. A. Snider, a former pastor of the First United Brethren church in Marion.

Messages expressing best wishes for speedy recovery were sent to Samuel S. Bader of Elyria and Clarence Couts of Marion, who were prevented by illness from attending the reunion.

A resolution was adopted conveying thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Marguerite Ramroth, owner and manager of Eaglewood club, for again making the club's hospitality available for the annual reunion. All but one of the club's 13 reunions have taken place at Eaglewood and arrangements were made to meet there again in 1949.

You May As Well Have This Added Comfort...

Anyone who has attended a funeral service on a hot day can easily realize the benefit of a good air conditioning system under such conditions.

Several years ago genuine Carrier air conditioning was installed in the Hughes Funeral Home. It enables us to provide a temperature that is comfortable regardless of how hot the outside weather may be.

Like the Everett organ, this is an investment we have made in behalf of our patrons. The use of our air conditioned Funeral Home and the Everett organ are a part of our service at no extra or added charge of any kind. When the occasion arises, you may as well have this added comfort.
